

This week was the seventh week of my internship. I experienced so many things so far and I feel I have nothing to write down here anymore. But one thing that I can say is now I feel I can adapt any multinational workplace or environment. I remember we had a mock interview at the beginning, I have something strong desire of my dream, but it was quite difficult to put them out because of my English ability. However, I don't think I'm weak at English and this is my greatest achievement.

Although I do want to create a company which can create a better world, I might have some internship at global big firm such as consulting or banking. They all require English interview, but I won't afraid of it anymore. Be sure to have a courage and I will spend great last week!