

This week was the last week of my internship. Through internship, I acquire mainly three skills. Firstly, English ability. I did programming through reading textbook which is written in English so I had to accustomed to read English books. This experience got rid of my fear of reading foreign books. Secondly, Programming skills. I was completely beginner at the very first day, but I found that I'm so interested in building something new. Therefore, this computer skills help me a lot to show what I want to make. I would like to apply this skills into a job in the future. Lastly, management skills. Our company was a start-up so we faced a lot of conflict as well. At that time, leader was forced to manage the issue properly, which is so difficult. However, that experience realized me that even the founder of a company is smart, it is necessary to think at the level of bottom-level workers. Otherwise employee can't work for a long time and it is not beneficial for company.

I learned a lot from my internship and I'm so excited to apply these skills into my next career! Thank you.
